

Title: Indian girl invented solar power generation

Generated on: 2026-04-06 14:47:30

Copyright (C) 2026 ALEXANDRA BESS. All rights reserved.

---

In Tiruvannamalai, a small temple town in the southern Indian state of Tamil Nadu, she designed an ingenious solar-powered alternative for the millions of charcoal-burning ironing carts that...

The prototype of Vinisha's mobile ironing cart which uses solar panels to power a steam iron box has been developed by National Innovation Foundation (NIF) - India in the year 2019.

This young girl hailing from the temple town of Tiruvannamalai in Tamil Nadu has designed a Vinisha Umashankar, a 14-year-old girl from Tamil Nadu has invented a solar powered ...

Now, however, a 14-year-old girl, troubled by the heaps of used charcoal left by her local ironing vendor and by his painful wheeze from pollution, has developed an alternative: an award ...

Vinisha Umashankar and her solar ironing cart. She came up with the idea when she was 12 -- then worked with engineers to create a prototype. Now she's in Glasgow, Scotland, to speak at ...

A 14-year-old teenage girl named Vinisha Umashankar has won the Children's Climate Prize for her invention of a wheeled cart equipped with solar panels and batteries sufficient to power ...

Vinisha Umashankar, a 14-year-old in India, won the Children's Climate Prize for her solar-powered iron, which could help prevent air pollution and forest loss.

Vinisha Umashankar, a class 10 student from Tiruvannamalai district of Tamil Nadu, received the Dr APJ Abdul Kalam IGNITE Awards, for her mobile ironing cart, which uses solar panels to power a...

Website: <https://lesfablesdalexandra.fr>

