Ofgem's energy price cap limits what you pay for gas or electricity on a variable rate plan. You can see the latest information regarding the price cap levels and date changes on the Ofgem ...

The price cap doesn't put a limit on the total cost of your energy. Instead, it limits the amount you pay per unit of gas or unit of electricity - and for your daily standing charge.

Ovo is the first major energy supplier to launch a competitive fixed price tariff since the energy crisis begun. Ovo's 1 Year Fixed 23 March 2023 deal will work out at $\pounds 2,275$ a year for dual ...

Ovo has offered its first deal below the Government's $\pounds 2,500$ cap on typical household bills amid falling wholesale gas prices. The energy giant is offering a one-year fixed tariff of $\pounds 2,275$ to ...

The offer is $\pounds 225$ less than the Government's Energy Price Guarantee (EPG), which caps the cost of a typical household's annual energy bill at $\pounds 2,500$. Providers are beginning to offer deals ...

Last month analysts at Cornwall Insight forecasted that Ofgem's energy price cap - which in normal times limits what suppliers can charge per unit of energy - will fall to $\pounds 2,153$ a year from...

OVO's prices on standard variable tariffs have increased three times and dropped once in 2025 in line with Ofgem's energy price cap. Another rise will come into force from January 2026...

Ovo Energy Rates: A typical household will pay $\pounds 2,000$ - $\pounds 2,500$ a year until June 30, 2023, & $\pounds 194,500$ more from July 1, 2023, to March 31, 2024.
